History Making Stories

Judge George Leighton

MUCH HISTORY, especially African American history, has yet to be told. These stories are rich and full of life lessons. They are ones that everyone can relate to. They inspire, educate and show the results of determination. Like the story of Judge George Leighton who, because of his family's need for money, was unable to attend high school. His free time spent reading won him a scholarship to Howard University where he graduated Magna Cum Laude before graduating from Harvard Law School in 1946. This information is not taught in our schools. But it's true...and someone wants to tell these stories. The HistoryMakers, a national, 501(c)(3) non-profit educational institution, is committed to preserving, developing and providing easy access to a priceless archival collection of thousands of African American video oral histories.
